How French Soldiers and Sailors Are Treated

The French Government is using Cadum Ointment in treating its soldiers and sailors for skin troubles. The Minister of War, with the approval of the Director of the Health Department, ordered 500,000 boxes of Cadum Ointment for this purpose. These high officials knew the therapeutic value of this remedy, or they would not have authorized its use. No matter how many remedies you have tried for your skin, you can take fresh courage, because Cadum Ointment is different from anything else. It stops itching at once, and begins healing with the first application. Obstinate skin troubles, such as eczema, pimples, sores, eruptions, ringworm, chafing, etc., yield quickly to its wonderful soothing and healing properties. Trial box, 10c.—Adv.

Arnone, an Italian, was shot through the heart near Tony Galatro's home at Pine Brook yesterday afternoon by his cousin, John Galatro, a Red Bank expressman. Members of the Galatro family declare Galatro was shooting birds when one of the shells jammed in the barrel. In trying to extricate the shell it exploded and Arnone was killed.

After the shooting John Galatro jumped on a horse and got away. Detectives caught him later. He was locked up in the Freehold jail with his father, Tony Galatro, and his brother Frank. An autopsy and inquest will be held. A loaded revolver was found on the dead man's body.

SURFEIT OF GOLD IN UNITED STATES IS EMBARRASSING

Yellow Money Scared Away by War Now Coming Back in Great Streams.

BUT IT DOES NO GOOD.

Is Piled Up in Bank Vaults, Idle and Unproductive—Wanted: Business.

(Special to The Evening World.)
WASHINGTON, June 14.—Continued flow of gold into the United States is causing financiers and economists to consider possibilities of unfavorable conditions resulting. There is such a thing, they say, as a country so surfeited with gold as to become embarrassed with riches, just as landlords become land poor.

Very nearly all the gold that was drained out of the United States by scared Europeans just before war began has come back, and by the end of the month the balance will be more than struck.

While such a condition would indicate outwardly an enviable increase in national wealth, a large part of the incoming gold is not doing much good, because it is piling up in bank vaults and the National Treasury, lying idle and unproductive. Experts of the Treasury and leading bankers agree that there is now plenty of gold in the country to finance any legitimate expansion of industry. It is business more than gold that is wanted. The abnormal flow to this country is weakening other countries, and in the final settlement this balancing is liable to cause trouble.

A significant item in the Treasury statement indicative of idle money is that of subsidiary silver coin on hand. There is a steady accumulation of dimes, quarters and half dollars that should be in active circulation for pay envelopes and small change use by millions of people.

Since Jan. 1 there has been an increase of $6,000,000 in idle small silver sent to the Treasury vaults for storage. In the same period there was an increase of $97,000,000 in the total gold supply, but much of it is lying in storage. Millions upon millions of dollars' worth is held in rough bars uncoined. The Treasury is issuing gold certificates against this bullion both for convenience and to stimulate circulation. New York banks report unprecedented surpluses of reserves.

Between June 1 and Dec. 31 last year there were $115,000,000 in gold taken out of the United States by the war scare. Since Jan. 1 $97,000,000 of it has come back.

In this return there are some queer developments. New York City, for example, is credited with having received $38,000,000 in gold from foreign countries in the past five months. But a good many of the supposedly imported gold bars at the assay office recently give evidence of having been no further away from the sub-treasury than the vaults of Wall Street banks.

The deduction is that last autumn, when millions of American gold were supposed to have been cached in Ottawa, Canada, for the Bank of England, part of it was in reality held in New York for foreign account and not shipped out of the country.

Government reports for May just completed show that no gold has come from England direct. The millions contributed by the Bank of England have been drawn from the Canadian cache or merely transferred on the books of New York banks. The notable movement is in French gold, of which $11,500,000 actually came into New York during the month.

Japan is contributing heavily from her scanty store of gold. Eight millions have come into San Francisco during the past few months. This movement is caused partly by purchases in this country, but principally by Germans selling out their interests in Japan after war began and transferring the gold to the United States for German credits here.
